The image shows a calendar grid for the first five months of the year. Each month is represented by a white rectangular box with a red border and a red tab at the top left corner. The months are arranged in two rows: January, February, and March in the top row; April and May in the bottom row. A black cartoon cat character is positioned at the bottom right, holding up the calendar pages with its paws. The cat has a white face with black eyes and a black body with a white belly. The calendar pages are currently blank.
